Mayor and Council Dispute Widens

Bickering Goes On for 105 Minutes; Meeting Then Ends Abruptly

Granite City's council and mayor ran off another hectic session that came to a quick end at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday—well before the 11 o'clock curfew-following a fiery, across-the-table exchange between Mayor Partney and Alderman Moerlien.

The mayor relinquished his chair to att down at a council chair to att down at a council chair to a c ment fee for householders.

Ironically, it was an issue regarding the sewage treatment at the start of the meeting that enflamed the seven-monthold mayor-council feud, although bickering started before the meeting was even called to order.

"The town meeting takes only to minutes," Partney re-five minutes," Partney remarked.

Actually, the town board session took only four minutes, even with the initial roll call by the control of t set it with Moerlien's," the mayor added.

Even with no agenda to follow, the meeting started off in a routine fashion, with approval of the minutes and the reading of communications by the clerk.

Do Aldermen Wish to Preside Over the Decline of Their Downtown District?

Since the decline and fall of the Roman empire, countless public officials have based decisions on the state of the constituents had not elected them to "preside own that their constituents had not elected them to "preside own that they have jurisdiction. It makes a neat and understandable slogan when running for office, and it sums up the valid philosophy that a leader cannot be called successful unless the cause he is leading suc-

when running for office, and the called successful unless the cause he is leading successful unless the cause he is leading successful unless the cause he is leading successful was a successful to the cause of the cause of the cause of the period of their public service. But the fact remains that they have not yet acted on the Cranite City urban renewal application, a program intended to solve or partly solve the most pressing downtown needs—commercial stimulus, auto access and parking.

Councilmen can acops of what they have down to consider the capability of the control of the contr investment in the central business district to ignore making the needed improvements. It district can be expected to decline and the city will have on its hands a shell of what was once a thriving commercial district. The slace undoubtedly will be absorbed by both St. Louis and surrounding shopping centers'—a situation which would reduce the property tax base and municipal government.

Most issues are a shade of gray, rather than entirely black and white, and it would be unfair to say that aldermen do not care about Cranite City and its future. But the current crossroad-downtown decline and decay or an economic rejuvenation—present a challenge truly dramatic and serious without resort to exaggeration or oversimplification. Action is essential. When will the city council act?

Administration Still Ignoring the Worsening Squeeze On Steelmakers

with customers high steel inventories currently being reduced and steel imports continuing to rise, the "squeeze" on U. S. steelmaking orders is making itself felt here and nationally. September order books are more barren than any month this year. Steel imports this month may hit a record two million tons.

The situation focuses a brighter spotlight on the national administration's failure to support an import quota plan.

Foreign producers, who pay low wages, ought to be limited to a fixed percentage of the U. S. market. As steel usage rises, they could increase their business, but not in a way detrimental to maintenance of a healthy domestic steel industry, which is indispensable to our national defense.

Apparently President Johnson plans no

Apparently President Johnson plans no change in his attitude between now and the end of his term in January. Whether steelworkers and steel firms can look to the future with greater confidence will depend on the stands taken by present nominees and by the outcome of the Nov. 5 election.
